Ministry Updates

Over the past few months, we have been fortunate to have a diverse team comprising township churches, youth leaders, and myself. Witnessing the positive feedback and inspiration that this collaboration has brought has been incredibly fulfilling.

Furthermore, I had the privilege of working alongside Mr. Magugu during a handover process, where I seamlessly took on his responsibilities and continued the important work he had been doing. Through these experiences, I have discovered a deep sense of purpose and fulfillment by supporting both the youth and schools in our community.

One particular area of need has been the support of school ministries. The schools have eagerly awaited the presence of our team, and I am grateful to have had the chance to provide guidance and support to the team at Langa. It is through the dedication and hard work of our team that my commitment to making a positive impact in the lives of the youth we serve has been reinforced.

As we continue our work, we find ourselves grappling with important questions. How can we better equip emerging Christian leaders for roles beyond the church? These questions have been at the forefront of our discussions with other pastors and youth leaders in the local community.

My personal drive stems from the desire to provide young individuals with the same transformative opportunities I have encountered. It is my hope that through our efforts, they too can experience the power of Jesus and witness the remarkable ways in which He can change lives beyond imagination.

A Personal Note

amidst all these activities, I also had the pleasure of preparing for my wedding. It was no easy task to balance the demands of work and wedding preparations, but with God's providence and support, everything went smoothly. I am grateful for the success we experienced and the hands that carried us through this busy season.

Shortly after my wedding, I had the opportunity to guide and support a church with their first holiday club. Today marks the last day of the program, and while I am exhausted, I am also incredibly happy to report that everything went well.

Prayer Requests

- Please join me in prayer for a good balance between work and investing in the community, and personal life and rest.
